

TORONTO AGAIN OBTAINS TITLE IN TRACK MEET

Consiglio High Scorer For Red and White

RECORD BROKEN

Presbyterians Finished Third in Annual Intercollegiate Field Day

Special to McGill Daily
(By J. P. Manion)

Kingston, Ont., Oct. 21.—Under a cold, dull grey sky, swept over by dense black clouds, the Toronto Blue and White raced through to a decisive victory over McGill and Queen's at the Intercollegiate track meet which was held at Richardson Stadium.

Though Toronto had 74 points, McGill 47, and Queen's 5, the going was strenuous throughout the afternoon. McGill was rarely in contending position for first place, but they did raise the hopes of their followers by fighting to a closer finish than had been expected.

There was a cold northerly wind blowing throughout the day, and this was to be counted among the adverse conditions in all the events except the javelin, in which the following wind caused the record to be broken by all three point winners. The winning toss was 165 ft. 4 1/2 inches, shattering the record made by Rahmehop last year by more than 15 feet. McTaggart, of Varsity was the winner, but was closely followed by Poupore, the McGill freshman, who threw over 160 feet, breaking the existing record by 7 feet. To wind up the performance, Cummings, of McGill broke the record twice at 156 feet 6 inches.

McGill started out in surprising style by winning the high hurdles. Baker, a Commerce freshman did the unexpected, and led throughout the race. Hutchins, another freshman in the same faculty came third in this event. At this stage in the meet, the wind was so strong that it toppled over the high hurdle standards several times before this race started.

Consiglio proved to be the most consistent point getter for the Red and White, garnering in nine points. He came in second in the pole vault, high jump and long jump.

The running of the events lagged behind somewhat, and it was almost dark by the time the quarter mile came off. This was the last event, and to the small gallery who were still present, proved to be the most exciting race of the day. Hands, of McGill, started out in the lead, but was passed on the turn by Christie, who took the outside of the track. Hands caught up, however, and for 150 yards both men raced abreast, with Christie slowly drawing ahead, to win easily in the last hundred yards.

A fairly good crowd of Kingston undergraduates were present despite the inclemency of the weather.

Band Will Meet in Union Prior to Game Today

According to instructions issued last night by bandmaster Caron, the University Band will meet at 1:30 o'clock today in the Union prior to the game with R.M.C. The customary uniform will be worn. The band will march to the Stadium and will be followed by the rooters.

Although there was a scarcity of seats for the big game last week, there has been ample provision made for all those who will parade to the game today behind the band, who are to wear their colorful sweaters, caps and white flannels.

VOLUNTEER BAND DISCUSSES PROGRAM

Students Interested in Missionary Work Gather

STRATHCONA HALL

Plans for Year Include Study From "Christian Voices Around the World"

These students sufficiently interested in missionary work to consider activity in foreign lands met yesterday at 5 o'clock in Strathcona Hall at the first meeting this season of the Student Volunteer Band. This meeting was called to make plans for the coming year's work.

G. A. Holland led the discussion which opened with devotions. The leader did not attempt to tell the history of the movement, but an active interest in the organization. There have been 11,000 members on the North American continent.

As the Band had a definite aim, its appeal was necessarily limited, the leader pointed out. But it was more than a study group; it was more personal, more practical. It was a recruiting agency, a vocational fellowship, Mr. Stauffer was further quoted.

A set of six books entitled "Christian Voices Around the World" was adopted to guide the study of the coming year, these books, dealing with the major non-Christian areas of the world, Latin America, Japan, the Near East, Africa, India, and China, are written by nationals of the countries concerned.

Up until the present the S.C.A. has not conducted a definite missionary study group although this year such a one will start under E. B. Copland with the help of the Volunteer Band will co-operate.

It was decided that the Band will meet next on Friday, November 4th, in the same place, and that meetings thereafter will be on the first and third Fridays of the month. The appointment of a corresponding secretary was postponed until the need was greater.

MED. UNDERGRADS MEET MONDAY

Addresses by Dr. Bouchard and Prof. Abbott

Dr. C. C. Birchard of the Montreal General Hospital, will address the Medicine Undergraduates on Monday, Oct. 24th, at 8:15. His subject is "Electrocardiography". The meeting is to be held in the lecture hall of the Biological Building.

There is, moreover, to be an extra speaker, Alexander C. Abbott, Professor of Public Health and Bacteriology at the University of Pennsylvania, has promised to say a few words. Prof. Abbott has a rich and noteworthy career. Born at Baltimore, Md., he was educated at the U. of Maryland, where he obtained his M.D., and at U. of Berlin, Johns Hopkins and U. of Munich. Besides being sanitary inspector, he was in the 2nd Army at Toulon, France, and received the title of Colonel. Prof. Abbott, furthermore, is the author of miscellaneous researches and addresses on Bacteriology and Hygiene.

The usual case reports will take place and refreshments will be served.

SECRETARY ELECTED

Fred M. Waldie, the only nominee for the position of secretary of the Science Undergraduate Society, was elected to that office by acclamation. Nominations for the offices of secretary and assistant secretary of this society were called for October 18th, but to date the only nomination received was that of F. Waldie. A further meeting will be held in the very near future to discuss further plans and the election of an assistant secretary, which office must be held by a second year man.

VARSITY TEAM GAINED TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP

Finished Second Day's Play With Total of Ten Points

JACK WRIGHT WON

McGill Champion Meets Gilbert Nunn in Singles Final Today

Jack Wright, McGill tennis champion and Canadian intercollegiate title holder, will defend the latter title on the courts of the Outremont Tennis Club today when he meets Gilbert Nunn, youthful Varsity star, in the final at 1:30 p.m. Wright's brilliant play in the quarter and semi-finals yesterday served as the only bright spot in a dull day for McGill which saw the intercollegiate title, which has been held by representatives of this University for the past seven years, slip from their grasp.

The team from Varsity ended the day with a total of ten points, which left them with a margin over their opponents which cannot be equalled no matter what happens today. McGill still has representatives in the singles and doubles, however, and local supporters are pulling hard for two titles for McGill, which would to some extent compensate for the loss of the championship.

Wright was in brilliant form yesterday when he walked through his opponents in convincing fashion. In the early afternoon he took on Wally Martin, lanky Varsity youth from the west. Martin was favored to make Wright step, and he did live up to matters considerably. But the Canadian champion was much too strong and he ran through the match in straight sets. Wright next took on Don Gunn, another of the Toronto hopes. Gunn was playing at the top of his game, but again Wright showed his superiority and Gunn, fighting hard all the way, also succumbed in straight sets.

Gilbert Nunn, on the other hand had a desperate fight against Brian Doherty before he qualified to meet Wright. Doherty, who is a brother of D'Arcy Doherty, McGill half-back, and who is representing Osgoode Hall, came within an ace of defeating the hard-hitting Nunn. The Varsity champion played casually in the opening set, and Doherty was quick to run up a lead and take the set. Nunn came to life in the second set and ran through with the loss of only two games. He ran up a lead of 5-2 in the final set and it looked as if he had the game on ice.

But Doherty, who is one of the pluckiest of fighters, came back gamely to even the score at 5-5. He led 40-15 in the next game, but Nunn evened the score at deuce, took the game, and followed this up by winning (Continued on page four.)

CHESS CLUB HAS ELECTED OFFICERS

"B" Team Receives Montreal Chess League Cup

Dr. A. S. Eye was unanimously elected honorary president of the McGill Chess Club at its organization meeting held Wednesday afternoon in the Lounge Room of the Union. Other officers elected were pres. P. S. Wise, secretary treasurer, S. Gold; League representative M. Garmale.

It was announced that the Club had just received the silver cup offered by the Montreal Chess League. The McGill "B" Team has won this cup for the last three years, and providing there are as many members this year as last, it will have permanent possession of the cup.

After Garmale read last year's financial statement it was decided that there would be no change in the entrance fee, which is fifty cents. All students who wish to become members of the club may obtain their membership cards at the Union Truck shop, or from S. Gold, Arts '29. These cards entitle them to obtain the chess sets in the Union whenever they desire to play.

Prospective members are urged to apply immediately so that they may be given an opportunity of playing on the "B" or "C" team this year. It was pointed out that the lists of the team must be submitted as soon as possible to the secretary of the Montreal Chess League, in order that the schedule for the year may be made out.

PROFESSOR LLOYD ADDRESSED SOCIETY

Subject of Talk Was, "Studies of Periodic Precipitation"

PHOTOGRAPHIC SLIDES

Election of Officers for Coming Year Preceded the Lecture

Following the election of officers of the McGill Chemical Society yesterday afternoon, for the coming session, Professor Lloyd addressed the club on the extremely interesting subject of Periodic Precipitation.

The new officers of the society are: Dr. H. J. Hiltner, President, H. Greenberg, vice-president, A. C. Cuthbertson, secretary. This was followed by the election of new members from the Graduate School in Physics, Chemistry and Botany.

Professor Lloyd's address had to do with the production of banded precipitates in porous media known as Liesegang rings.

Under suitable conditions precipitates formed by diffusion of reacting solutions into gels or other porous media may be deposited in a number of separate bands or layers associated with large spherical aggregates. This curious phenomenon, Dr. Lloyd pointed out, had a significance in Biology for plant tissue can give the same results as a gelatin gel, the only difference being that a much greater complexity is met with in plant tissues than in the common laboratory preparation.

By means of some excellent photographic slides he described the rings very clearly and showed the similarity between the formation in plant tissue and colloids. Associated with each of the rings is a disc which lies slightly to the left of the plane of the disc and on which if the ring is made enough condenses with the ring to give a kind of cone-shaped aggregate.

Microscopic examination shows that these rings and disks are heterogeneous and their formation was pointed out as probably due to a surface effect. The precipitate formed by the diffusion of ammonia sulphide into a gel containing a cobaltous salt, tends to diffuse to the surface of the glass tube, in which the gel is placed forming parallel rings whose distances apart decrease as we pass up the tube.

Although the formation of these rings has been known for a long time Professor Lloyd pointed out that no very satisfactory explanation has been given. Now it appeared to be that the surface effect was the predominating factor in their formation.

By means of numerous slides he showed how he and co-workers had arrived at this idea and that although many attempts have been made to explain the formation of the rings still the role of the surface seems to be most important.

QUEEN'S-VARSITY GAME

A short summary of the Queen's-Varsity football game at Kingston today will be filed by a special correspondent of the Daily this afternoon immediately on conclusion of the all important fixture.

The wire should reach the Union shortly after five o'clock in time to accommodate the students returning from the R.M.C.-McGill exhibition. The story will be read out in the Cafeteria and then posted on the notice board.

PLAYERS CLUB WILL PRODUCE ONE ACT PLAYS

Will Ask Professor Matthews to be Director

MET YESTERDAY

Selection Committee Reports Choice of Number of Suitable Plays

The report of the selection committee on their choice of plays and the election of a lady vice-president were the main items of business at the meeting of the Players' Club of McGill held yesterday afternoon in the Music Room of the Union.

The meeting was opened by the president, C. G. Wainman, who expressed satisfaction at the attendance. A large number of students attended this meeting than have attended meetings in the past, a large number of freshmen being on hand to learn of the club activities and plans for the coming year. The first item of business was the election of a lady vice-president. Gertrude Lerner R.V.C. '29 was elected.

The president then gave an outline of the proposed activities of the society. He stated that the club intends, providing that permission is secured from the Dean of the Faculty of Arts and the Department of English, to stage two or three one-act plays in Moyse Hall on December tenth. No tickets will be sold for these plays but invitations will be extended to various persons to attend. He also stated that the executive had decided on February 24 and 25 as the days on which to stage the annual three act play. He stated that he had written to the Dean in connection with this matter but as yet had received no reply.

The president then called upon the selection committee to report their choice of suitable one-act plays. Amongst the many plays suggested as suitable for production were "Trifles", by Mrs. Suzanne Gaspe, "Women's Honour" by the same author, "Thompson's Luck" by Grover, "Home of the Free" by Elmer L. Reizenstein, "Bimbo the Pirate" by Booth Tarkenton, "Riders to the Sea" by Synge, "Finders Keepers" by George Kelly, "Thursday Evening" by Christopher Morley and "Marriage has been Arranged" by Suro. The final choice of plays rests with the executive which will decide on some time next week.

In the past, the custom was for the club to appoint or elect a director from among the students but this year an attempt is being made to get the services of some professor to direct the production of the plays. Miss Lerner reported that she had seen Dr. Files in this connection and that he said (Continued on page four.)

IMPROMPTU DEBATE TO BE HELD SOON

Freshmen Will Compete For Bovey Shield on Thursday

The annual impromptu debating contest among Freshmen for the Bovey Shield will be held this year in the Union Hall Room on October 27, at 4 P.M.

In the past the custom has been to give the competitors five minutes in which to prepare their speech before they were called on to speak, but this year the Literary and Debating Society have made a new departure. The subject upon which the competitors will be required to speak will be published in the Daily on the morning of the competition, thus giving all speakers all day in which to prepare. Each speaker will talk for a period of five minutes on the selected topic.

The shield is for competition in the field of public speaking. Those eligible to compete in this contest are men who are in their first university year and also those, who coming from other colleges, are at McGill for the first time. The only exception to this rule is that anybody coming from another college and holding a B.A. degree is ineligible. Each speaker will be required to deliver a five minute address prepared in advance on a selected subject. Good pronunciation and the use of grammar are to be given first consideration and no candidate shall be awarded the shield unless he comes up to the required standard. A candidate may speak in French providing contest.

Geoff Simpson's Orchestra Will Play at Dance

Geoff Simpson's orchestra has been engaged to play for the informal dance on Friday next. Practically all other details have been completed, and everything is ready for the First Union House Informal of the year.

It is expected that there will be about 150 couples present. As usual, refreshments will be served in the cafeteria, on request, providing same is paid for. It is understood, of course, that the dance is informal, and a great variety of color and style is expected. Freshmen who are not acquainted with any young ladies are advised to buy their tickets now, and obtain a girl at the Conservatory which will be held two days before the dance. Tickets are now on sale and can be obtained from class presidents.

McGILL PETITION UPHELD BY CITY

Apartment Buildings Forbidden on University Street

At a special council meeting held Thursday afternoon, the city upheld the University's objection to the erection of apartment houses in the vicinity of the college. This area extends from Sherbrooke to the mountain.

The reason given by McGill for the petition was that the higher the buildings became, the less daylight the research laboratories on the campus would receive. Since a maximum of light is necessary, and since experiments of importance are going on continually, immediate steps had to be taken.

In connection with the amendment to the by-laws which affect University street, above Sherbrooke, the petition from McGill University advocated returning to the old regulations, and petitions from residents favored extensions of the present status.

A. J. Brodeur explained that formerly only residences were allowed on this street. Then a house had been transformed into an apartment, contrary to the by-laws, and without the knowledge of the city. The building changed hands several times, and finally the last holder was notified by the city that he would have to restore it to a residence. As the conditions of the sale and the special circumstances warranted an exception in this case, the council had passed a by-law to allow this building to remain as an apartment, but on the understanding that this would be the sole exception. It was to re-establish the former state of affairs that the present by-law was before council and in adopting it the city would simply re-apply and confirm the previous prohibition against apartments or places other than residences.

The council passed the by-law.

PROFESSORS AND BOOKS

WHEN the average student comes to college he has every intention of investing a small fortune in books. This is quite all right and the student does not mind buying books at the suggestion of the different departments and professors, if only he uses them occasionally, but the student is often asked to buy books, which he very seldom uses and which are nothing more than a waste of money.

This state of affairs should cease, for there is nothing more scarce amongst students than money, and it is certain that they do not delight in handing out coin extravagantly for text-books. Last year, for example, the French department asked the students taking a certain sophomore course to buy a certain number of books one of which was only used once and another of which might just as well have never been purchased.

The trouble is undoubtedly due to the fact that the professors ask the students to buy the books without due consideration, and thus put the students to no little expense and trouble.

WHY HAVE THE RED TAMS DISAPPEARED

BACK in the days of four-man bucks and centre scrims, there used to be a picturesque custom at McGill which seems to have been dropped in the past few years. It was a tradition of this university, and indeed for several years was as much part of the R.V.C. dress as helmets were of the rugby players. We refer to the custom of wearing red tams on the afternoons of inter-collegiate rugby games.

Why the custom was ever dropped no one seems to know, but there are several reasons why the custom should be revived again, the first of which is that nothing is more beautiful to behold from the grandstand than a sea of red tams on the south or bleacher side of the field. The tams were made of a cheap material, and could be rolled up and carried in a pocket easily, and were, we believe, every bit as warm as the modern hats which are themselves as crushable.

There is nothing to prevent the undergraduates of the fairer sex from acquiring these excellent coverings for the head before the next big inter-collegiate fixture, namely the game with Varsity here on the fifth of November. It would contribute greatly, we believe, to a victory on that occasion. Therefore let the fair maidens get together. We are sure that if they adopt this suggestion they will feel more than satisfied on the occasion of the next big game here. We heard them cheer and root and yell at the Queen's game last Saturday, and there is no doubt why they should not be ready to follow this suggestion which is we believe a reasonable one, deserving of sensible consideration.

FIELDS WHICH ARE FAIREST

PROFESSOR Adair's appeal to students to realize what an interesting field there is in Canada for historical research, is timely.

The usual story told in this connection is about the Londoner who lives all his life in the world's most wonderful city without entering St. Paul's cathedral or travelling through the Tower of London.

Thousands of American tourists this summer marvelled at the superb ecclesiastical architecture of St. James cathedral, gazed intently and long at the curlew in the Chateau de Belem, and caught fleeting glimpses of place after place of historical interest during their autumn tour of the city.

Montrealers—even Montreal university students remain apathetic to the offer.

How we would love to cross the ocean and worship at the shrine of Great Britain's greatest poets, or enter the sacred places in the Holy Land where Jesus trod, or see the seven old wonders of the world.

We must not forget that Quebec is known to all the world as a treasure-trove of historic beauty, and that the people who know least about that treasure-trove are the people living closest to it, who are not even interested enough in it to read about it, let alone examine it.

This apathy often has a far more serious result. Modern business must carry everything before it. If a more beautiful relic, useless for money-making, stands in the path of business, it is wiped out and a few voices here and there protest.

Many of these "relics" are fit for nothing else but the junk heap, but we know that many are being ruthlessly destroyed before their time.

We would advocate student tours, not tours to faraway cities or countries, but tours through the great monumental legacies of former years which are to be found close at hand. More practical plans have already a fine program of tours through modern industrial plants. Why should the history department, or any other department professing to study history cannot, organize tours as well, and make them part of regular courses. We know that they would be appreciated.

CANADA'S SUPREMACY

Empire Experts Gather at Convention in Montreal

The second meeting of the Empire Mining and Metallurgical Congress at which hundreds of mining men from all parts of the Empire are gathered to discuss many important matters related to the development of the Empire's mineral wealth, opened in Montreal on August 22. The technical side of the program includes the presentation of papers containing the results of extensive research on problems encountered in various economic phases of mining and metallurgy, and this opportunity for the exchange of views and ideas is proving of the greatest value to the mining and metallurgical industries not only within the Empire but throughout the world.

Incidental to the work of the Congress the visitors are taking advantage of the opportunity to acquaint themselves with mining in Canada and to secure first-hand information regarding the varied and extensive mineral resources of the Dominion. Specifically planned tours are now in progress which cover the entire country from the Pacific to the Atlantic, and visits are being made of most of the more important mining camps and metallurgical plants. In all, one and one-half weeks covering a six-week period have been arranged.

It is well known that the last quarter of a century has been a period of remarkable development and expansion in the Canadian mining. The actual position of the Dominion among the mineral-producing countries of the world may, however, be a matter of surprise for many. Canada, in fact, supplies 50 per cent of the world's nickel, 40 per cent of its asbestos, 10 per cent of its cobalt, 9 per cent of its gold, 8 per cent of its silver and 7 per cent of its zinc, and 4 per cent of its copper. In world production the Dominion is first in nickel, cobalt, and asbestos; third in gold and lead; and fourth in silver. Mineral-bearing deposits are found in many parts of Canada and recent discoveries and developments indicate that Canada's contribution to the world's metal markets has future possibilities of even greater importance. A vast area of mineral-bearing territory, probably the largest and most promising to be found anywhere, still remains unexplored and unprospected.

Some of the most unique individual mineral deposits in operation in the world today, not only from a standpoint of present output, richness and size of their known reserves but also in respect to possibilities for future industrial expansion, are located in Canada. The Hollinger, Creighton, Pacific and the Pacific, and visits are

IMPROMPTU

Framed twilight
Candles of sunset gold,
You sit
Smiling, impetuous and bold
Poet's whims
Lure in your deep dark eyes
Weird charms
From your velvet-like hair arise

Witching lips
For a wild kiss plead,
Altars red
At which to tell love's beads
Then why must you crush
The symbol
Of Love's first flush?

Gertrude Lerner.

EAST WIND

What news East Wind?
What news to-day?
Tell me East Wind,
Tell me as you play
Like a lightsome fairy
Over the water in the bay.

Tell me East Wind
Whence have you come?
From the rustling apple orchards
Or the rich, lush plum?
Tell me East Wind
Tales of far away,
Of golden, glowing rivers
Where wild waves play,
Of the music of great valleys
And what the flowers say.
Tell me East Wind
Tales of far away.

Tell me of this northland,
This great land of ours,
Of its mountains and its meadows,
And sun-gold showery.
Tell me East Wind
Tales of long ago,
Tales of the silence
And the silver of the snow,
Of lost camp fires
That long have ceased to glow,
Of White Man and Red Man
And wandering Eskimo.

Lead me East Wind
Down the Trail of Time
Where have fled the weary centuries
To another fairer clime,
To a vague and far-off someplace
Where life's a golden rhyme.

Oh tell me East Wind
Fading far away,
Where do the winds go
At the end of day?
What do the flowers say?
And wild waves at play?
Tell me East Wind
Fading far away.

amongst the world's greatest producers.
The year 1926 witnessed a total mineral production in Canada valued at more than $241,000,000, an advance of more than $18,000,000 on the previous high record of 1920, notwithstanding the fact that the level of metal prices was approximately 50 per cent higher in that year than in 1926. The sustained and increasing demand is contributing to the expansion of nearly all the producing districts, and providing an incentive to the development of new areas, many of which are approaching the stage of substantial production.

Next Week at Local Theatres

AT THE CAPITOL

Ramon Novarro's latest starring vehicle, "The Road to Romance," the screen adaptation of Joseph Conrad's famous novel of the same name will be the feature photoplay at the Capitol starting tomorrow, Sunday, and all next week.

"The Road to Romance" has been lavishly produced and gives the eye a sense of color as well as a background for the dramatic action. More than one thousand extras, most of them Spaniards and Mexicans, appear in the big scenes.

The coming to Canada of Dawn Asheton, heralded around the world as one of the most remarkable lyric sopranos of the day, is a musical event of the first importance. Miss Asheton has won the highest encomiums, not only in her native land, but from critics in foreign countries. She has sung in Budapest and Vienna, in Paris, in Berlin, in India, Egypt, Ceylon, Palestine, Burma, South Africa, New Zealand, Australia and the Malay States. She amazed the Hungarian critics by her magnificent interpretation of their national songs in their native Hungarian. She set Paris talking with her heropere work, she is a singer of unique quality, for her voice, with a lyric soprano, is also one of exceptional power, and in range she challenges all.

Miss Asheton, however, prefers to be considered from the viewpoint of quality and tone, as a singer. Though she can sing powerfully, she emphasizes the violin quality of the human voice on all possible occasions. That in her view, is its finest feature. Her idea is that it is the mission of the singer to let the human emotions, and this is the ideal she sets herself in all her song programs.

In personality she is dainty and petite, gifted with rare beauty, and possessed of a charm of manner that immediately wins her audience. Her repertoire ranges from the biggest operatic roles to the slightest of light up-to-date lyrics. She has songs to suit every taste that can be moved by music. Her appearance here with the Capitols at the Capitol theatre will be the only opportunity Montreal music-lovers will have of hearing her this season, as she returns to England immediately on the termination of her continental tour.

AT THE GAYETY

The chorus of the "French Models" is said to be one of the greatest assets of the Gayety show. They are regarded as the best formed women on the circuit, and are given opportunities for the display of their physical charms and their dancing and singing skill not customarily bestowed upon girls of the chorus.

Violet Elliot, "The Little Venus" is still the star of the company and will be seen in a new and sensational specialty called "The Dance of the Seven Vells." George Hart is the leading comedian and others in the cast are popular favorites of burlesque patrons. "French Models" will be at the Gayety Theatre for an engagement of one week, commencing Sunday night, October 23rd.

AT THE ORPHEUM

A diverting comedy that made all New York laugh for a whole season, will be presented next week at the Orpheum Theatre by the Orpheum Players. This is "Square Crooks" by James P. Judge. It is a novel variation from the routine type of crook melodrama. The background is the New York underworld, and some of the crooks we meet there are honest ones. They have a code of their own which compels them to play square. They are in fact, two young men who have decided to abandon a dishonest life, but who find themselves hampered in their intentions and their efforts by a man from police headquarters who has no faith in any form of reformation.

McGill Receives Great Honor

Great Canadian writer is contributing his life-work in easy instalments exclusively to the "Daily."

Owing to the resourcefulness and ability of the literary editor of the McGill Daily, we have secured the publishing rights of the greatest biography of the age, modelled to a large extent on the immortal biography of Dr. Johnson by Boswell.

It is entitled "The Life of Dr. P. G. Dapple, the world-renowned Canadian man of letters, whose tragedies, and cyclopaedia of modern expression, have won him five L.L.D. and three D.Litt. degrees from several countries including Czechoslovakia, as written by his close friend and associate, Professor Alexander Halliburton McTavish."

Dr. P. Green Dapple, as everyone knows, is Frothblower professor of Modern Syntax at our own university, and has been referred to as the Mussolini of English letters.

Our editor interviewed Professor McTavish just before the precious manuscript passed into his hands. He was seated at his delicate writing desk, which has as a special embellishment, a shiny mirror. He was arranging his tie as the interviewer entered.

"Sit down," he commanded. The interviewer sat.

"You are here, I presume to collect my manuscript," resumed Professor McTavish. "Here it is, brought up to date. It shall be added to as I proceed. You are aware, of course, of the great privilege which I am bestowing on you. I am using the McGill Daily as a means of publication because I want my biography to be known to the educated masses, to which I shall send copies, without Dr. Dapple knowing. Dr. Dapple does not condescend to read the McGill Daily."

The interviewer did not argue the point with him.

"Treat this manuscript very gently," said Professor McTavish. "The paper is not very good, I couldn't afford—I prefer this paper." "His Scottish accent sounded very pleasant, I thought."

The interviewer then tipped out of the room.

This amazing biography will start very shortly in the McGill Daily.

lon and who cherishes a bitter grudge against one of them. The theft of a famous pearl necklace apparently provides headquarters with its opportunity. However, they find their way to happiness in the end.

The situations are amusing, and there are plenty of unexpected turns to the action. The dialogue is smart, and laughter is constant. The various personalities portrayed provide a kaleidoscopic group, and their merit is shared by the audience. There is a humanity about the whole that warms the heart, and the spectator is made to feel that he is watching a human drama, not a play enacted by puppets. James Metcalfe, the late dean of New York dramatic critics, declared that he would rather have it recorded on his tombstone that he was the author of "Square Crooks" than of nine-tenths of the plays on Broadway last year.

This comedy will provide an effective contrast to "The Masquerade," in which the Orpheum Players have been scoring such an emphatic success during the week, and which stands out as their best all-round performance to date.

Judge (to drunkard): What do you mean by smashing this man's store window?

Drunk: Well, shir—It was like this—I was standing in front of this guy's store window and while I was lookin' in I saw some hum lookin' at me and laughin'—so I just took a poke at him.

CRAMMING "A" GRADES

Cornell "Sun" Comments on Criticism of Present Education

"It is the quality rather than the quantity of students that is objected to," says James Rowland Angell, president of Yale University, in the current issue of Harper's, apropos of the great wave of criticism which is surging through American educational ideals. As a determining factor for this state of affairs, President Angell maintains, "the great public that ultimately supports education has a good deal more appreciation of athletics and especially of football and all that it symbolizes than it has of distinguished Greek scholars. We have not developed in this country any general respect for scholarship as such."

The fault lies deeper than that. It is because the present educational system permits students of the standard and most meager intellectual powers and achievements to go forward indefinitely in it. They can loaf through a course until the final examination attend a high-powered cramming school, and come out with a B grade. What students learn they do not learn well. History does not aid in the interpretation of the present; science fails to show facts as the outward expression of laws; and learning does not become understanding.

Yet after talking with four seniors in the College of Arts and Sciences, it was evident that the present system of education has much in its favor, for each one of these men stated that he had returned to college determined to study as he had never studied before. In their fourth year, and in their fourth year alone, these men had acquired a thirst for knowledge. They wanted to know. Their attitude is typical of many others. The pity is that this desire arrived three years late.

SINCERE INTEREST IS MERIDIAN OF SUCCESS

President Bailey, of Vermont
in Convocation Address

Wellington, Vt., Oct. 2.—At the opening convocation of Vermont University President Bailey spoke upon "The Meridian of Life." His address follows.

To the younger generation the transition from the primary grades to the grammar school, from the grammar school to the junior or secondary school, and then to the university may each in itself seem to be the meridian in life. However, each such step in itself represents only a bit of experience. Real value accrues only as one measures the accumulative effect of the various steps. To you who are just entering upon this further journey and perchance think you see your meridian high in your sky, let those of us who are older suggest that that meridian is not yet in sight.

You, members of the class of 1931, evidence by your very presence among us your desire to progress toward the meridian of your hopes. No matter how pertinent, how serviceable our suggestions may be, they are valueless without your honest consideration and the application on your part of certain contemplative processes. The new step you take this morning involves a new set of ideals, a keener sense of the discriminating facilities. Too often students fail to appreciate all that is involved in the transition from secondary school days to university life. The University is generally regarded as the final place of instruction before one enters upon his life's work. Too often the importance of evaluating matters on a university basis is underestimated, is disregarded. Too many entering students expect the same close supervision in University work that was exercised during their school days, and seem to believe that the responsibility for their progress rests in the main with their instructors. Their hopes are vain. Perennialism which is properly exercised in the preparatory school does not exist in University life.

There is no training that will prove so effective a measure of youthful ability as a college course. The young man or woman who seeks a college education without sincerity of purpose not only injures himself or herself but may stand in the way of some deserving student who longs for and is debarrd from the opportunity. Too often parents making great sacrifices in behalf of their children find that their efforts are unappreciated. A right minded college athlete of course works to play the game contrary to the rules and so each student should be and usually is similarly minded in respect to his educational opportunities and should play fair with his parents, the institution and himself. College halls were not built to shelter the indolent or the inefficient. The institution accepts no responsibility for laziness or indifference on the part of a student. Our officials whose duty it is to follow the progress of students and to appreciate the results of their work will frequently notify parents in cases of remissness, but after all the real responsibility rests with the individual student.

It is quite generally the rule among the better American colleges and universities to refuse a student who has failed elsewhere. A student applying for admission as a transfer is not invariably with this question: "Could you return to the institution from whence you came?" The importance of making good in the case of one first trial is obvious.

In the academic world there is a term known as "institutional retard." This quality takes precedence of age and students. Our regulations are simple. From time immemorial, our University men and women have understood that their conduct toward all men is to be regulated by those plain rules of politeness, honor and religion which are binding on every free and virtuous community.

Institutional responsibility implies the presentation of a proper curriculum, the teaching of the various courses according to approved standards, the utilization to that end of such facilities as are available. Student responsibility implies an honest endeavor to assimilate a reasonable amount of the proffered instruction in an understanding manner and an ever present sense of obligation to those at home. This institution will go farther than many. We do not only say to you, we offer you our courses of instruction, our facilities and our prestige, but we will assist you in a financial way if your earnestness of purpose indicates that you are deserving of aid.

Some one has quite truthfully said that the finest culture that fits every man and woman for a good and successful life is hard work. There is much of that to be done. The nation that conforms to the right standards will live. Your duty is clear to yourself and to your nation.

May we not say that you have reached the meridian of success in the collegiate world when you have demonstrated a fair and sincere interest in your studies, when you have so conducted yourselves that you have won the regard of your teachers and your fellows, when you have shown yourselves to be possessed of the right spirit whether you lose or win? The enlightenment and discipline acquired by mental and moral training in a university atmosphere are the greatest factors aiding one's progress toward the meridian of life.

When will you have attained the meridian of your life's work? Will it not be when your character has developed to its fullest extent, for the highest type of character is well said to be that which builds for eternity? May your meridian of life represent all that is sound, judicious, honest, and upright. In this undertaking, we welcome you heartily and promise you our sincere and sympathetic interest.

that since Professor Nunn, and Dr. Macdonald are away from the university, he had double work on his hands and couldn't possibly accept. Suggestions were called for some other professor to act as director and it was decided to ask Professor Matthews why it was not taken a lively interest in dramatics. The question of the appointment of a business manager for the club was left over for the next meeting.

The president stated that he had received a suggestion from the former president of the society to start a small club library to which the members would contribute in the form of books of plays. As it was claimed that the library had quite a large number of books of this kind the matter was dropped. This finishing the business for the day, the meeting then adjourned.

After the meeting the executive met to discuss the plays submitted but nothing definite was decided.

PREDICTS CHILDLESS HOMES IN FUTURE

Statement Attacked as Groundless by Prof. Cogshall

(By Exchange Service)

That homes in 1950 will be childless and servantless, predicted by the Rev. William Inge, a "gloomy dean" of St. Paul's, is considered by Prof. W. A. Cogshall, of the astronomy department, as another wild guess by some one who wishes publicity. He has no scientific basis for such a statement, Prof. Cogshall says. Any one can make statements of what they think will take place in the future.

The population will begin to decrease slowly in 1950, said Dean Inge in his story in the "Evening Standard." At the present time the population is on the increase and shows indications of a change. If there is a decrease in 1950, it probably will be due to something quite unusual, such as a wide spread epidemic, or a world war in which modern warfare is used.

A decline in number would relieve the burden of unemployment which is due clearly to overpopulation, and a little more elbow room would be very desirable, according to Dean Inge.

He likewise predicts that further "social equality" will go further than economic equality. Education is removing rapidly the dialectical barriers, which accentuate social barriers in England. Hundreds of gentlemen's sons are becoming tradesmen while the sons of workmen are entering the professions, until a man's occupation will soon be no indication of the position of his family.
